Preface to the First Volume of the First Edition.

The present work, as differing from the existing Shakespearian glossaries, the object of which has been only to explain what has become obsolete and unintelligible in the writings of the poet, is to contain his whole vocabulary and subject the sense and use of every word of it to a careful examination.

As it was not intended to establish a critical standard, but only to furnish some of the necessary materials for criticism, it seemed convenient to lay aside, for the present, the question of the authenticity of the works generally ascribed to Shakespeare, and to consider as genuine all that has been commonly printed together as Shakespeare's, namely the thirty-six plays of the first and second Folios, together with Pericles, and the so called Poems; but to disregard the apocryphal pieces of the latest Folios as well as those which the criticism of still later times has brought into connection with the name of the poet. The stage-directions, too, even those of the earliest editions, have been left unnoticed, as it appeared more than doubtful whether they were written by Shakespeare himself.

In the present unsettled state of textual criticism it could not be decided, whether the Folios or the extant Quartos deserved greater credit. But fortunately the business of a lexicographer was, in this point at least, easier than that of an editor, who must make his choice between different lections, whereas the former may fairly content himself with registering the occurring variations. These have indeed been collated with great care wherever some authority could be attributed to the ancient texts; excluding, of course, those Quartos which the editors of the first Folio meant when speaking of stolen and surreptitious copies, maimed and deformed by the frauds and stealths of injurious impostors, namely the Quartos of the Merry Wives and Henry V, the 'First Part of the Contention', the 'True Tragedy, and the earliest impressions of Romeo and Juliet (1597) and of Hamlet (1603). Their variations are, at the best, of the same weight as the conjectures of modern emendators.

The example and reasons of the Cambridge editors have been decisive for adopting the modern orthography, those cases excepted when the different spelling of the old editions was evidently caused by a difference of pronunciation.

As for etymology, which ought to be the groundwork of every general dictionary, its importance seemed subordinate and sometimes even doubtful in ascertaining the sense of words in a particular period, — a period especially in which the genius of the language broke new ways, now and then even with some violence, to supply its increasing wants. Therefore the derivation of words has been neglected on purpose, except when there was no other means of finding out their meaning. Accordingly, in arranging the different significations of one and the same word, a natural and rational rather than an historical order has been observed, as it always seemed the safest way to study and explain the language of Shakespeare by itself, calling in no other help as long as it could be done without. In the definitions themselves as well as in their arrangement there will undoubtedly much be found to object against, but let it at the same time be borne in mind that it is next to impossible to draw everywhere a strict line of demarcation, and that, at any rate, the means of finding the truth for himself have always been placed within the reach of the reader.

Originally a purpose was entertained of making the quotations absolutely complete, even with respect to the most common and constantly recurring parts and forms of speech. As, however, there arose some danger of impairing the utility of the book by hiding momentous questions under cumbrous details, copious use has been made of the signs f. i. and etc. by way of indicating that sufficient proof, if needed, was offered in every page of the poet.

On the other hand, it was not quite easy to resist the temptation to make this lexicon a general repertory and store-house of Shakespearian lore by collecting and garnering up in it all that the industry of two centuries had done in this branch of literature. But, for once, first thoughts were best. In pursuing too vast a project, the principal design of the work was too likely to have sometimes been lost sight of. Following, therefore, the old maxim that the half is more than the whole, and keeping within the proposed bounds, the task was limited, in whatever reached beyond them, to the smallest possible compass. Obscurities not originating in the peculiar use of words, but in the poet's train of thought, have been considered as quite out of the question and entirely left to the commentators.

Even thus the work would remain extensive enough to make any superfluity a fault. Erroneous opinions and wrong conjectures of modern editors were not admitted, unless they had become too popular to be altogether left unnoticed. Obvious and evident things, that stood in no need of authority, were left to speak for themselves; and only in doubtful cases, or if there had been some particular merit in finding the truth, it seemed unfair not to give every one his due. But after all, truth cannot fare better than to be received as a matter of course.

Foreign and dialectic words and phrases used by Shakespeare will be collected in an appendix to the second volume, for which are also reserved some grammatical remarks designed to prove the justness of several interpretations which would else, perhaps, appear arbitrary and hazardous. They are fewer in number than was at first anticipated, for the excellent Shakespearian Grammar of Mr. Abbott, published in the meantime, together with Sidney Walker's Critical Examination of the Text of Sh., reduced the task to that of a gleaner following in the footsteps of reapers and picking up a few neglected ears.

Of what use the work will be, the event is to prove; — planned it was with a view to make the poet better understood than before; — to lay a firmer foundation for the criticism of his text; — to furnish reliable materials for English lexicography, which has, since the time of Samuel Johnson, increased in extent rather than in intrinsic value; — to set right, although only one, yet certainly the most prominent landmark in the history of the English language.

While the general reader will look for assistance in the definitions and explanations, scholars and critics will be soonest pleased, if satisfied by the exactness of the quotations. Therefore communications concerning errata will be extremely welcome.

Merely practical considerations prevailed in choosing the English language for the interpretations. No doubt the English of a German will often be found exceptionable and try the indulgence and kindness of the reader. But the author had no greater ambition, — if a lexicographer may be allowed to be ambitious — than to be useful also to born Englishmen.

Preface to the Second Volume of the First Edition.

The Appendix of this second volume will contain, besides what has been promised in the preface of the first, a list of the Shakespearian words forming the latter part in compositions, to meet a want not only felt by the author himself on many occasions, but intimated to him by some literary friends. In applying to it, it must always be borne in mind that it pretends to no higher claim than to be a supplement to this dictionary, and has no other object than to complete the quotations of the respective articles, by setting before the reader the whole range of evidence to be found in the works of the poet. For in very many cases the sense of simple words could not be distinctly ascertained except from their compounds. Wherever the boundary line between English and Latin or French composition was hardly discernible, it was thought better to do too much than too little.

One advantage, at least, was gained by the new revision of the whole vocabulary thus instituted. It led to the detection of some words — indexed on the next following leaf — that had been overlooked by the compiler, — a fault which, if nobody else, those at least will be inclined to pardon who ever have been engaged in a similar labour.

The reception the first volume has met with has been, in some respects, beyond the most sanguine expectations. The kind judgments passed on it by the most competent critics were indeed the more gratifying, as they did not, and could not possibly, touch the general design and tendency of the work, but turned on details and the manner of treating particular questions. The justness and soundness of a method cannot be put to a better test than in its bearing on single points at issue. 'Assurance now is made double sure' that much that at first sight, and considered by itself, could not but seem objectionable, will be seen in another light, when in time the peculiar nature and the fundamental law of the whole will be fully perceived.

To make the poet his own interpreter, by discarding all preconceived opinions and subordinating all external means of information to those offered by himself, was throughout the leading principle of the work. What Aristarchus once did for Homer, and Galen for Hippocrates, was yet to be done for Shakespeare. We beg to refer the reader to an extract from Galen's præf. voc. Hippocr. quoted in Professor Lehrs' work 'De Aristarchi studiis Homericis' p. 44: "Ὅσα τοίνυν τῶν ὀνομάτων ἐν μὲν τοῖς πάλαι χρόνοις ἦν συνήθη, νυνὶ δ' οὐκέτι ἐστί, τὰ μὲν τοιαῦτα γλώσσας καλοῦσι καὶ ταῦτα ἐξηγησόμενος ἔρχομαι τὰ δὲ ἄλλα ὅσα ζητήσεως μὲν οὐχ ἥττονος προσδεῖται, συνήθη δέ ἐστιν εἰς τὰδε, κατὰ τὰς τῶν συγγραμμάτων αὐτῶν ἐξηγήσεις ἀμεινον ἐπισκοπεῖσθαι. Τίς γὰρ ἡ κρίσις καὶ τί τό θεῖον καὶ τί τὸ ἀρτίως καὶ τίς ἡ ἐπ' ἄκρων εὐεξία καὶ πάνθ' ὅσα τοιαῦτα λόγον παμμήρους εἰς ἐξήγησιν δεῖται, συνήθη δέ ἐστιν οὐδὲν ἥττον ἢ βίος καὶ βραχυς καὶ τέχνη καὶ μακρά καὶ καιρός καὶ δξύς· καίτοι

καὶ τούτων ἔνια δεῖται τινος ἐξηγήσεως. Ὅθεν ἔμοιγε καὶ θαυμάζειν ἐπῆλθε τῶν ἅπασαν ἐξηγεῖσθαι τὴν Ἰπποκράτους λέξιν ἐπαγγελιαμένων, εἰ μὴ συνίσασιν ὅτι πλείω παραλείπουσιν ὧν διδάσκουσι.

To this Prof. Lehrs observes: Haec omnia primus intellexit in Homero et praestitit Aristarchus. Quare non scripsit glossas, sed in continua poetae interpretatione accuratissime versatus est, in consuetis vocabulis, quorum et ad maiorem Homericorum locorum partem plerumque pertinet utilitas et explicatio certior, plus etiam quam in rarioribus et antiquitate obscuratis operae ponens et ne quid praetermittatur verbum verbo reddens. Abiecit illas doctrinae sarcinas, non tam existimans, ex aliis scriptoribus multa ad Homerum illustrandum promi posse quam cavendum esse ne aliorum consuetudine temere ad poetam translata imprudentes in vitia et errores incurramus.

Let us subjoin, for the use of Shakespearian text-emendators, a few more citations from the same work:

Galen (praef. ad L. VI Epid.): πολὺ βέλτιον ἔδοξέ μοι φυλάττοντι τὴν ἀρχαίαν γραφὴν ἀεὶ μὲν σπουδάζειν ἐκείνην ἐξηγεῖσθαι, μὴ δυννηθέντι δέ ποτε τοῦτο πράξαι πιθανὴν τὴν ἐπανόρθωσιν αὐτῆς ποιῆσθαι.

Quintilian (Instit. orat. IX, 4, 39): Quaedam in veteribus libris reperta mutare imperiti solent et, dum librariorum insectari volunt inscientiam, suam confitentur.

Lehrs (p. 358): Ars critica primum elaborat ut scriptores, quos pauci mss. corruptos exhibent, sine summa offensione legi possint; partim imperfecta ars multa non intelligit inscientia, quae tollit ne quid relinquatur quod absurdum esse putat. Sed gliscentibus studiis, codicibus pluribus paratis, rerum sermonisque scientia vulgata, arte interpretandi exulta, multis obscurioribus locis per variorum tentamina tandem reclusis, in arctiores se fines contrahit, et quo magis primi magistri peccaverunt, eo magis jam ipso contradicendi studio ad fontes suos revertitur.

Preface to the Second Edition.

This new edition of the Shakespeare Lexicon should properly be called a mere reimpression. The work being stereotyped, there was no scope for comprehensive alterations and improvements. A complete reconstruction that would have answered the many valuable suggestions of other Shakespeare students or even the compiler's own advanced views — especially concerning the comparative authenticity of the Folios and Quartos — was quite out of the question. His task was confined to the correction of misprints and to some small additions for which room could be got by expunging what seemed less important.

But, after all, it is perhaps best as it is. Desirable as it may be to an author entirely to remodel a work of the shortcomings of which he has become painfully aware, there is no denying the fact that such new editions altered and improved into quite new books are, as a rule, an annoyance to the public. Nobody is so rich as not to repine at being obliged to buy the same book three or four times. Indeed, it ought to be a law in the republic of letters that essential changes in books should be separately published in the form of supplements and not worked into the whole so as materially to change its form and character.

Besides, in such a kind of book as this lexicon it is not so much in the opinions of the author that its usefulness consists as in the accuracy with which the necessary materials are brought together to enable those who consult it to form an opinion of their own. And of this the reader may be assured that in the revision of the work no pains have been spared and that the correctness of the quotations will be found all but absolute.

Koenigsberg, Dec. 1885.

Preface to the Third Edition.

The text of the third edition, published after the Author's death, had to remain essentially unaltered, for reasons mentioned in the former preface. Only very few slight mistakes in the quotations have been found and corrected, and several short explanations added. Besides, some asterisks were inserted, which refer to the Supplement. A few additions to the Appendix (Quotations from foreign languages and Provincialisms) have been indicated by brackets.

The Supplement contains a compilation of new interpretations of difficult words and phrases, arranged in alphabetical order, selected from different modern annotated editions and other books. As a rule, the opinions of English scholars only have been reproduced, who are the most legitimate commentators of the great English poet. With such interpreters as Murray, Skeat, W. A. Wright, Furnivall, Dowden, Sidney Lee, Ellacombe, D. H. Madden, Wyndham, E. K. Chambers, Herford, Gollancz, Boas, among others, we need scarcely look anywhere else for help. In a few cases, however, some interpretations given by American, Dutch, or German scholars (Furness, Grant White, Hudson, Ch. Allen, Stoffel, Van Dam, Brandl, Max Foerster, W. Franz, Kluge, Koppel, Schroeer, Wetz, and a few others), or some conjectures and explanations of my own have been added.

Sincere thanks are due to Professors Brandl, Foerster, Kluge, Wetz, and to Dr. Vordieck for kind advice and valuable suggestions.

The different Quarto editions are designated in the same manner as in the great Cambridge edition of Messrs. Clark and Wright.

By the initials the unchanged forms and words are meant, as they stand in the respective headings; inflected forms are denoted by their terminations preceded by a dash; f. i. under the article Grow g. means grow, —s grows, —ing growing, etc.

The quotations are from the Globe edition.

Asterisks inserted behind some articles or quotations refer to the Supplement.

Names of Authors quoted in the Supplement indicate, as a rule, editions of Shakespeare's Plays and Poems, or other well-known books connected with Shakespeare, f. i. Wyndham = Shakespeare's Poems by George Wyndham; D. H. Madden = The Diary of Master William Silence by D. H. Madden; S. Lee = A Life of Shakespeare by Sidney Lee.

III, 1, 105. Mch. IV, 3, 101; cf. Such-a-one. Twice such an one: Mch. IV, 3, 66. Ant. I, 2, 118. An before w: have an wish, Per. IV, 4, 2. Of the original indiscriminate use of a before consonants as well as vowels a trace is left in the pun of Mrs Quickly: An fool's head, Wiv. I, 4, 134.

Superfluous repetition of the ind. art. before adjectives: a blasting and a scandalous breath, Meas. V, 122. a present and a dangerous courtesy, IV, 2, 171. a virtuous and a reverend lady, Err. V, 134. a dulcet and a heavenly sound, Shr. Ind. I, 51. a common and an outward man, Alls III, 1, 11. a maiden and an innocent hand, John IV, 2, 252. a mighty and a fearful head, H4A III, 2, 167. a slobbery and a dirty farm, H5 III, 5, 13. a peaceful and a sweet retire, IV, 3, 86. a puissant and a mighty power, H6B IV, 9, 25. a weighty and a serious brow, H8 Prol. 2. a dismal and a fatal end, Mch. III, 5, 21. a nipping and an eager air, Hml. I, 4, 2. a tyrannous and a damned light, II, 2, 482 (Ff and damned). a malignant and a turbaned Turk, Oth. V, 2, 352. No less before adjectives placed after their substantives: a proper stripping and an amorous, Shr. I, 2, 144. a goodly portly man and a corpulent, H4A II, 4, 464. a goodly dwelling and a rich, H4B V, 3, 6. an honest gentleman, and a courteous, and a kind, Rom. II, 5, 56. a very valiant Briton and a good, Cymb. IV, 2, 369.

As before hundred and thousand (q. v.) the art. is, though seldom, found before other numerals: never a one of you, Tim. V, 1, 96. not a one of them, Mch. III, 4, 181. a 'leven, Merch. II, 2, 171 (Q1 eleven). a fourteen, H4B III, 2, 53. Similarly before many, q. v.

Its use after as, how, so and such is in general conformable to the now prevailing rule (f. i. so fair a house, Tp. I, 2, 458. as good a thing, V, 169. how high a pitch, R2 I, 1, 109), and the passage in H6B IV, 9, 17: continue still in this so good a mind, cannot be called an exception; but there are a few instances of its omission: in so profound abysm, Sonn. 112, 9. as good deed, H4A II, 1, 33 (Ff as good a deed). with as big heart, Cor. III, 2, 128. It seems to have strayed from its place in the following expressions: so rare a wondered father, Tp. IV, 123 (= so rarely wondered a father, i. e. a father endowed with such a rare power of working miracles). so fair an offered chain, Err. III, 2, 186. so new a fashioned robe, John IV, 2, 27. cf. such a coloured periwig, Gent. IV, 4, 196; the phrases so rare a wonder, such a colour etc. being treated as simple words, from which adjectives in ed might be derived.

Similarly placed between comparatives and their substantives: with more tame a tongue, Meas. II, 2, 46; especially when preceded by no: no better a musician, Merch. V, 106. no worse a name, As I, 3, 126. with no greater a run, Shr. IV, 1, 16. upon no better a ground, Cor. II, 2, 13. no worse a place, Oth. I, 1, 11. no worse a husband, Ant. II, 2, 131.

According to custom, the poet says: once a day, a thousand pound a year (f. i. Tp. I, 2, 490. Meas. I, 2, 50. II, 1, 127. IV, 2, 158. Err. IV, 1, 21), but also: once in a month, Tp. I, 2, 262. one day in a week, LLL I, 1, 39.

The art. omitted after ever and never (f. i. Tp. III, 2, 30. Wiv. III, 5, 94. Err. II, 2, 117. Merch. II, 1, 41), even before the object: who never yields us kind answer, Tp. I, 2, 309. never to speak to lady, Merch. II, 1, 41. I never gave you kingdom, Lr. III, 2, 17; cf. H4A II, 4, 287. H6A III, 2, 134. III, 4, 19. H6C I, 1, 217. Oth. IV, 1, 111 (Qq a woman). V, 2, 61. Cymb. IV, 4, 89 etc. Keeping, however, its place, when never is but emphatically used for not: never a woman in Windsor knows more of Anne's mind, Wiv. I, 4, 135. cf. Meas. IV, 2, 5. Ado II, 1, 336. Merch. II, 2, 166. As III, 3, 107. Shr. I, 1, 240. I, 2, 80. H4A I, 2, 109. II, 1, 19. 31. H4B II, 2, 62. R3 III, 4, 58. H8 Prol. 22. Hml. I, 5, 123. Even in: there's ne'er a one of you, Tim. V, 1, 96.

Its omission in the predicate of rare occurrence: if you be maid or no, Tp. I, 2, 427. which would be great impeachment to his age, Gent. I, 3, 15. I will return perfect courtier, Alls I, 1, 221. as I am true knight, Tw. II, 3, 54. he is knight, III, 4, 257. I am dog at a catch, II, 3, 64. I am courtier cap-a-pe, Wint. IV, 4, 761. turn true man, H4A II, 2, 24. I must be good angel to thee, III, 3, 199. as thou art prince, 166. Marcus is chief enemy to the people, Cor. I, 1, 7. I'll turn craver, Per. II, 1, 92. to be beadle, 97. cf. H6A V, 4, 170. Lr. I, 2, 79.

Often omitted in comparative sentences, and whenever the respective noun expresses the whole class: stone at rain relenteth, Ven. 200. as falcon to the lure away she flies, 1027. wilt thou be glass wherein it shall discern authority for sin? Lucr. 619. loathsome canker lives in sweetest bud, Sonn. 35, 4. 22, 12. 55, 4. 85, 6. 7. Meas. II, 1, 269. Mids. I, 1, 184. III, 2, 101. V, 401. As II, 7, 52. 146. 148. IV, 3, 33. Alls IV, 3, 369. Tw. I, 3, 66. III, 1, 131. H6B I, 4, 78. II, 2, 63. H8 I, 1, 158. III, 2, 132. Troil. I, 1, 59. II, 3, 204. III, 2, 200. Tit. II, 3, 302. IV, 2, 172. Caes. V, 2, 5. Hml. I, 3, 76. Lr. II, 4, 270. V, 3, 10. Ant. I, 1, 17. But also in a particular sense: with coronet of fresh and fragrant flowers, Mids. IV, 1, 57. by new act of parliament, H6C II, 2, 91. in posture that acts my words, Cymb. III, 3, 95. In an apposition: doff this habit, shame to your estate, Shr. III, 2, 102. Inserted, on the other hand, contrary to the common use: would he not, a naughty man, let it sleep? Troil. IV, 2, 34.

Used for one: he shall not have a Scot of them, H4A I, 3, 214. these foils have all a length, Hml. V, 2, 276. Oftenest in prepositional phrases: at a birth, Oth. II, 3, 212. at a blow, H6C V, 1, 50. at a burden, Err. V, 343. Wint. IV, 4, 267. at an instant, Wiv. IV, 4, 4. H4A V, 4, 151. at a shot, Hml. V, 2, 377. at a sitting, Merch. III, 1, 116. at a time, Tp. III, 3, 102. they are both in a tale, Ado IV, 2, 33. in a tune, As V, 3, 15. in a word, Gent. II, 4, 71. Merch. I, 1, 35. Troil. V, 10, 20. of an age, Rom. I, 3, 20. of a bigness, H4B II, 4, 265. an two men ride of a horse, Ado III, 5, 40. of a mind, Alls I, 3, 244. sip on a cup, Wiv. Answer, subst., 1) that which is said in return, reply: Lucr. 1664. Tp. I, 2, 309. Gentl. I, 1, 81. Wiv. I, 1, 261. Err. II, 2, 13. Lr. IV, 2, 6 etc. etc. Followed by to: John II, 44. Merch. I, 3, 11. H6A V, 3, 150. H6B I, 2, 80. IV, 4, 7 etc. Plur.: Mids. III, 2, 287. LLL I, 2, 31. 'His a. is ordinarily the answer which he gives, (f. i. Merch. I, 3, 11), but sometimes also the answer which he receives: Merch. II, 7, 72. IV, 1, 52. Tw. I, 5, 282. Cymb. II, 4, 30. To make a. = Sonn. 101, 5. Ado III, 3, 50. John II, 121. R2 IV, 20 (what a. shall I make to this base man?). H6A V, 3, 150. H6B I, 2, 80. IV, 4, 7, H6C IV, 1, 91. Hml. I, 2, 215. Ant. II, 7, 107.

As an answer may imply a declaration of will and purpose (LLL V, 2, 849. Merch. I, 3, 8 etc.), to give a. of sth. is equivalent to to declare one's meaning about sth.: is not this the day that Hermia should give a. of her choice? Mids. IV, 1, 141. I descend to give thee a. of thy just demand, H6A V, 3, 144.

III, 2, 200. for your days of a. R2 IV, 159. he'll call you to so hot an a. of it, H5 II, 4, 123. call these foul offenders to their —s, H6B II, 1, 203. brought him to his a., H5 IV, 2, 14. follow to thine a. Cor. III, 1, 177. I know my answer must be made, Caes. I, 3, 114.

Very near to, and almost coincident with, this signification is that of atonement, reparation for an offence, punishment: arrest them to the a. of the law, H5 II, 2, 143. render'd to your public laws at heaviest a. Tim. V, 4, 63. whose a. would be death, Cymb. IV, 4, 13.

3) return, retaliation: Great the slaughter is here made by the Roman; great the a. be Britons must take, Cymb. V, 3, 79. in a. of which claim, H5 I, 2, 249. Especially, as it is explained in Hml. V, 2, 176, the "opposition of one's person in trial," in consequence of an offence or a challenge: it may be his enemy is a gentleman of great sort, quite from the a. of his degree, H5 IV, 7, 142. and wake him to the a. Troil. I, 3, 332. if your lordship would vouchsafe the a. Hml. V, 2, 176. he'll not feel wrongs that tie him to an a. Lr. IV, 2, 14.

In fencing it is the coming in or striking in return after having parried or received a hit: on the a. he pays you as surely, Tw. III, 4, 305. if Hamlet give the first or second hit, or quit in a. of the third exchange, Hml. V, 2, 280.

Be. As what is regular and conformable to the present use of the word may be found in every page of the poet, we shall only point out what is of rarer occurrence or has now grown obsolete.

I) Anomalies of the conjugation: 1) Is instead of are: Ill deeds is doubled with an evil word, Err. III, 2, 20 (P2, 3, 4 and M. Edd. are). when his disguise and he is parted, All's III, 6, 113. his brother is reputed one of the best that is, IV, 3, 323. or is your gold and silver ewes and rams? Merch. II, 1, 216. disprove this villain, if thou beest a man, V, 2, 172.

After whether: whether thou beest he or no, I not know, Tp. V, 111. Beginning the sentence, the conjunction being omitted: beest thou sad or merry, the violence of either thee becomes, Ant. I, 5, 59.

5) Being often a dissyllable, f. i. Ven. 18. Lucr. 260. Tp. I, 2, 79. 91. IV, 1, 68. Gentl. II, 4, 93. III, 1, 57. 249. 2, 45 etc. etc. But as often, at least, monosyllabic: Ven. 24. 29. 1033. 1068. Tp. I, 2, 72. 74. 76. 97. 121. 353. 438. III, 3, 58. V, 28. Gentl. I, 1, 158. II, 7, 26. V, 3, 7 etc. etc. (cf. carrying, Hml. I, 4, 31. borrowing, I, 3, 77. doing, Mcb. I, 4, 23. giving, Cor. V, 6, 54. growing, H3 I, 2, 116. laying, Lr. IV, 6, 201. Ant. II, 2, 55. lying, Caes. IV, 3, 201. playing, Ant. II, 5, 11. seeing, Shr. Ind. 2, 134. Shr. III, 2, 132. H6C I, 1, 218. 247. Hml. III, 1, 33. Oth. I, 3, 203. throwing, I, 1, 52. tying, Cor. II, 3, 205).

6) I were = I was, but only in conditional and subordinate clauses: if ever I were traitor, my name be blotted from the book of life, R2 I, 3, 201. I am a rogue, if I were not at half-sword with a dozen of them, H4A II, 4, 182. if I did think, sir, I were well awake, Tp. V, 229. shouldst thou but hear I were licentious, Err. II, 2, 133.

7) thou wert = thou wast: for a woman wert thou first created, Sonn. 20, 9. I grant thou wert not married to my Muse, 82, 1. thou truly fair wert truly sympathized, 82, 11. thou wert immured, LLL III, 125. behaviour, what wert thou till this madman showed thee? V, 2, 337. thou wert born a fool, Wint. II, 1, 174. hearing thou wert dead, R3 III, 2, 73. I heard thee say that thou wert cause of Gloster's death, IV, 37. I was a poor groom when thou wert king, V, 5, 73. thou hast lost much honour that thou wert not with me in this action, H4A II, 4, 22. thou wert taken with the manner, 346. why didst thou tell me that thou wert a king? V, 3, 24. how wert thou handled, being prisoner? H6A I, 4, 24. yet tellest thou not how thou wert entertained, 38. why didst thou say, of late thou wert despised? II, 5, 42. when thou wert regent for our sovereign, H6B I, 1, 197. since thou wert king, the commonwealth hath run to wreck, I, 3, 126. where wert thou born? II, 1, 82. no less beloved than when thou wert protector to thy king, II, 3, 27. whom thou wert sworn to cherish and defend, R3 I, 4, 213 (Ff. wast). she was dead ere thou wert born, II, 4, 33 (Ff. wast). thou wert not wont to be so dull, IV, 2, 17 (Ff. wast). a dream of what thou wert, IV, 4, 88 (Ff. wast). having no more but thought of what thou wert, 107. when wert thou wont to walk alone? Tit. I, 339. wert thou thus surprised? IV, 1, 51. Othello, that wert once so good, Oth. V, 2, 291.

8) he were = he was: his giving-out were of an infinite distance from ..., Meas. I, 4, 54 (M. Edd. givings-out). so great fear of my name 'mongst them were spread, H6A I, 4, 50 (M. Edd. was). Adonis' garden that one day bloomed and fruitful were the next, I, 6, 7 (M. Edd. gardens). and they it were that ravished our sister, Tit. V, 3, 99. this most constant wife, who even now were clipped about with this most tender air, Cymb. V, 5, 451. After if: ne'er repent it, if it were done so, Gentl. IV, 1, 30. if there were a sympathy in choice, war, death ... did lay siege to it, Mids. I, 1, 141. most true, if ever truth were pregnant by circumstance, Wint. V, 2, 33. if the deed were ill, be you contented to have a son ..., H4B V, 2, 83. if ever any grudge were lodged between us, R3 II, 1, 65. if ever Bassianus were gracious in the eyes of royal Rome, Tit. I, 11. if to fight for king and commonweal were piety in thine, it is in these, 115. Caes. III, 2, 84. Again: one would think it were Mistress Overdone's own house, Meas. IV, 3, 3. I could say she were worse, Ado III, 2, 113. if we did think his contemplation were above the earth, H8 III, 2, 131. I should think here were a fairy, Cymb. III, 6, 42.

9) they was = they were: which of the two was daughter of the dulce, that here was at the wrestling? As I, 2, 282. their states was sure, R3 III, 2, 86 (Ff. and M. Edd. were). thy temples should be planted with horns as was Actaeon's, Tit. II, 3, 63. there was more than one; ay, more there was, IV, 1, 38. used to say extremities was the trier of spirits, Cor. IV, 1, 4 (F2, 3, 4 and M. Edd. extremity). All these seeming irregularities, which have been regarded by the ignorant as so many blemishes, must be considered in connexion with the original forms of English conjugation, which, indeed, in Shakespeare's time began to become obsolete.

10) been = are: he, doing so, put forth to seas, where, when man been, there's seldom ease, Per. II Prol. 28. In Per. II, 3, 82 been may be taken as the participle. In Cymb. II, 3, 27 the O. Edd. have: with every thing that pretty is; which some M. Edd. have, for the sake of the rhyme, changed to pretty bin.

11) Remarkable use. 1) as a principal verb; a) = to exist: thou nurrest all and murderest all that are, Lucr. 929. that which is has been before, Sonn. 59, 1. tongues to be (= to come, future) 81, 11. ages yet to be, 101, 12. truth may seem, but cannot be, Phoen. 62. an if this be at all, Tp. V, 117. such names and men as these which never were, Shr. Ind. 2, 98. that that is is, Tw. IV, 2, 17. from the all that are, Wint. V, 1, 14. for those that were, it is not square to take on those that are, revenges, Tim. V, 4, 36. the purposes I bear, which are or cease, as you shall give the advice, Ant. I, 3, 67. the most precious diamond that is, Cymb. I, 4, 81. which must not yet be but by self-danger, III, 4, 148. Mcb. I, 3, 141.

Being = life, existence: tongues to be your being shall rehearse, Sonn. 81, 11. my health and happy being at your court, Gentl. III, 1, 57. Pisa gave me my being, Shr. I, 1, 11. if the cause were not in b. Wint. II, 3, 3. would I had no being, H8 II, 3, 102. best state, contentless, hath a distracted and most wretched being, Tim. IV, 3, 246. whose star-like nobleness gave life and influence to their whole being, V, 1, 67. there's none but he whose being I do fear, Mcb. III, 1, 55. (But cf. and that they being some say of breeding breathes, Lr. V, 3, 143; Ff. and M. Edd. tongue). every minute of his being thrusts against my nearest of life, 117. and his being, Hml. II, 1, 96. I fetch my life and being from men of royal siege, Oth.

I, 2, 21. my being in Egypt (= my kind of life in E.) Ant. II, 2, 35. he quit being, Cymb. I, 1, 38. to shift his being, I, 5, 54. all the villains past, in being, to come, V, 5, 212. the womb that their first being bred, Per. I, 1, 107. from whence we had our being and our birth, I, 2, 114.

b) to be to one = to belong to one: I was then advertising and holy to your business, Meas. V, 387. your hand and heart should be more to me than any, H8 III, 2, 189. half all Cominius' honours are to Marcius, Cor. I, 1, 277. whilst this machine is to him, Hml. II, 2, 124. to thine and Albany's issue be this perpetual, Lr. I, 1, 68.

c) to be = to be the case: it is not that I bear thee love, As III, 5, 93. O absence, what a torment wouldst thou prove, were it not thy sour leisure gave sweet leave to entertain the time with thoughts of love, Sonn. 39, 10. were it not that my fellow-school-master doth watch Bianca's steps, Shr. III, 2, 140. were it not that I have bad dreams, Hml. II, 2, 262. were't not that we stand up against them all, Ant. II, 1, 44. cf. Cor. III, 2, 48. Lr. IV, 6, 144.

Being that = while: being that I flow in grief, Ado IV, 1, 251. you loiter here too long, being you are to take soldiers up, H4B II, 1, 199.

d) = to happen, to come to pass: where was this? Hml. I, 2, 212. (what is, my lord? III, 2, 127, is an elliptical question, viz = what is a fair thought?). an 'twere to me, I should be mad at it, Merch. V, 176. If it will not be, Ado II, 1, 208; and Will't not be? John III, 1, 298, are expressions of impatience, like the German: wird's bald?

e) Let be = no matter: no longer shall you gaze on it, lest your fancy may think anon it moves. Let be, let be. Wint. V, 3, 61. since no man has aught of what he leaves, what is't to leave betimes? Let be. Hml. V, 2, 235 (Ff. om.) 'twill be naught: but let it be; bring me to Antony, Ant. III, 5, 24. what's this for? Ah, let be, IV, 4, 6. Caes. I, 3, 80. let it be so; thy truth then be thy dower, Lr. I, 1, 110. let it be so; yet have I left a daughter, I, 4, 327. Hence the following passage receives its proper light: they were ratified as he cried 'Thus let be,' H8 I, 1, 171 (the expression being characteristic of the carelessness with which Wolsey hurried his business). — Quite different is the sense of Ado V, 1, 207: but soft you, let me be; i. e. let me alone; no more joking! — Be it so = no matter: Ant. III, 12, 10. cf. Cor. V, 2, 12.

f) As will, shall etc. are used instead of will go, shall go etc., so is for is or has gone: towards Florence is he? All's III, 2, 71.

g) Followed by an infinitive, = to be busied: he hath been all this day to look you, As II, 5, 31. I have been to seek you, Oth. V, 1, 81. courtesies which I will be ever to pay and yet pay still, Cymb. I, 4, 39. I'll fit you, and not be all day neither, All's II, 1, 94.

h) = to be written: if you have writ your annals true, 'tis there, that ..., Cor. V, 6, 114.

2) Peculiarities of its use as an auxiliary verb. a) Such phrases as 'that is brave, that is well' are common enough, but the following expressions: this was well counterfeited, As IV, 3, 167; 'tis well blown, lads, Ant. IV, 4, 25, and: this is fought indeed! IV, 7, 4; well moused, Lion, Mids. V, 274; well flown, bird, Lr. IV, 6, 92, may deserve notice.

b) be it his pleasure, All's III, 1, 16, = let him do at his pleasure, I care not. be 't so: declare thine office, Ant. III, 12, 10, = what of that?

c) be it possible, Shr. III, 2, 127 = if it be possible (cf. if); and thus also be it so = if it be so; if: be it so she will not marry with Demetrius, I beg the ancient privilege of Athens, Mids. I, 1, 39. be it that she survive me, Shr. II, 125.

d) how is it with you? either = how do you do? Tw. III, 4, 97. Cor. I, 6, 33. V, 6, 10. Oth. III, 4, 33; or = how stands the case with you? How is it with her? doth she not think me an old murderer? Rom. III, 3, 93. cf. so is it not with me as with that Muse stirred by a painted beauty, Sonn. 21, 1. 'tis so with me, Meas. I, 1, 82. were he my kinsman, it should be thus with him: he must die to-morrow, Meas. II, 2, 82. it is not so with him that all things knows, All's II, 1, 152. it had been so with us, had we been there, Hml. IV, 1, 13.

e) am I but three inches? (sc. high) Shr. IV, 1, 29. cf. if she say I am not fourteen pence on the score, Shr. Ind. 2, 24. to outlive the age I am, Per. V, 1, 15.

f) Verbs neuter often conjugated with to be, instead of to have: this gentleman is happily arrived, my mind presumes, for his own good and ours, Shr. I, 2, 213. Cardinal Campeius is arrived, and lately, H8 II, 1, 160. miracles are ceased, H5 I, 1, 67. what he feared is chanced, H4B I, 1, 87. how every thing is chanced, Caes. V, 4, 32. the deep of night is crept upon our talk, IV, 3, 226. the Volsces are entered in the Roman territories, Cor. IV, 6, 40. sith I am entered in this cause so far, Oth. III, 3, 411. that fallen am I in dark uneven way, Mids. III, 2, 417. his highness is fallen into this apoplexy, H4B I, 2, 122. they are gone a contrary way, All's III, 5, 8. though he be grown so desperate to be honest, H8 III, 1, 86. our sister's man is certainly miscarried, Lr. V, 1, 5. they were stolen unto this wood, Mids. II, 1, 191. Worcester is stolen away to-night, H4A II, 4, 392. Campeius is stolen away to Rome, H8 III, 2, 57. whither are they vanished? Mob. I, 3, 80. his lordship is walked forth into the orchard, H4B I, 1, 4 etc. etc.

But the use of is instead of has in transitive verbs must be considered as an inadvertence in writing, the rather as the other forms of the two verbs, in which there is no consonance, are never thus confounded: the king by this is set him down to sleep, H6C IV, 3, 2.* what late misfortune is befallen king Henry, IV, 4, 3. my life is run his compass, Caes. It must be left undecided, in which of these two significations the following passages are to be understood: shall a beardless boy . . . b. our fields, John V, 1, 70; and: when traitors b. the field, R3 IV, 3, 57. One acceptance is supported by the analogous use of the verb to become (q. v. sub 3; cf. besides: the foe vaunts in the field, R3 V, 3, 288); the other by a similar expression in H5 IV, 2, 36: our approach shall so much dare the field that England shall couch down in fear and yield. It must, however, be borne in mind that in this latter passage the word dare is used with peculiar propriety, being a technical term of falconry.

Brave, subst., display of valour, defiance, threatening: I will not bear these — s of thine, Shr. III, 1, 15. there end thy b. and turn thy face in peace, John V, 2, 159. where's the Bastard's — s, and Charles his gleeks? H6A III, 2, 123. this b. shall oft make thee to hide thy head, Troil. To b. under == to overcome, to subdue: not the least of all these maladies but in one minute's fight — s beauty under, Ven. 748.

Finally, to be with a p. to bring == to give him a sound lesson, to bring him to reason, to overcome him; with a lascivious sense, when spoken to women. To be with a p., without that apposition, is an ambiguous expression, as it may mean 'to join' in a friendly sense as well as to fight, to combat (cf. With). The addition of to bring gives it expressly the latter signification: I'll be with you, niece, by and by. To bring, uncle? Ay, a token from Troilus. Troil. I, 2, 305.

Bringer, he who brings, or that which brings: b. of that joy, Mids. V, 20. the first b. of unwelcome news, H4B I, 1, 100. saved the b. Ant. IV, 6, 26.

I, 6, 34. do you b. yourself about that? Lr. I, 2, 155 (Ff. with that).

Busyless, Theobald's emendation, approved by most M. Edd., in Tp. III, 1, 15 (O. Edd. most busie lest, when I do it), but entirely to be rejected. Singer's conjecture: 'most busiest, when I do it,' is somewhat less improbable, but then it should be at least: 'when I am doing them.' Perhaps the poet wrote: most busy rest, when I do it (= when I make or take it; cf. Tw. V, 136 and see the art. do).

But, except: b. in them it were a wonder, Phoen. 32. all b. mariners plunged in the foaming brine, Tp. I, 2, 210. I'll die on him that says so b. yourself, Gent. II, 4, 114. if all aim b. this be levelled false, Ado IV, 1, 239. what she should shame to know herself b. with her most vile principal, Wint. I remember the style*, LLL IV, 1, 98. can you not hate me, b. you must join in souls to mock me too? Mids. III, 2, 150 (cf. since brass, nor stone . . . but sad mortality o'erways their power, Sonn. 65, 2. a man cannot steal, b. it accuseth him, R3 I, 4, 139). I'll die for't b. some woman had the ring, Merch. V, 208. I would be sorry, b. the fool should be as oft with your master as with my mistress, Tw. III, 1, 45 (cf. beshrew). Followed by the subjunctive: and b. thou love me, let them find me here, Rom. II, 2, 76 (as the case is only supposititious). cf. b. I be deceived, our fine musician groweth amorous, Shr. III, 1, 62. b. I be deceived, Sigmor Baptista may remember me, IV, 4, 2. Followed by a participle: but being charged, we will be still by land, Ant. IV, 11, 1 (= if we are not charged). By a gerund: that which, but by being so retired, o'erprized all popular rate, Tp. I, 2, 91.

Still oftener but that, in the same sense: the sky would pour down stinking pitch, b. that the sea dashes the fire out, Tp. I, 2, 4. had come along with me, but that his mistress did hold his eyes locked, Gent. II, 4, 88. welcome, Mercade, b. that thou interruptest our merriment, LLL V, 2, 725. b. that it would be double-dealing, I would you could make it another, Tw. V, 32. cf. Tp. II, 2, 162. Meas. I, 2, 103. II, 2, 31. III, 1, 190. IV, 4, 26. Wiv. III, 5, 15. IV, 5, 120. Err. IV, 1, 3. LLL V, 2, 381. As I, 2, 259. Wint. IV, 4, 10. H6A I, 2, 24. IV, 1, 71. H6B III, 2, 216. V, 2, 84. V, 1, 13. H6B I, 3, 102. Caes. II, 1, 112. piece by piece, H4A V, 3, 27. point by point, H6C II, 5, 24. H8 I, 2, 7. Per. V, 1, 227. step by step, Tp. III, 3, 78. wave by wave, Tit. III, 1, 95.

No less in the phrase 'by one's self' = alone, without company: the king's son have I landed by himself, Tp. I, 2, 221. withdraw into a chamber by yourselves, Ado V, 4, 11. practise by myself, Shr. I, 1, 83. court her by herself, I, 2, 137. we'll have this song out by ourselves, Wint. IV, 4, 315. let him have a table by himself, Tim. I, 2, 30. Britain is a world by itself, Cymb. III, 1, 13.

Likewise in the phrase 'to come by sth.' (originally = to come beside, to come up with, and then to obtain, to get possession of sth.): Tp. II, 1, 292. Gentl. III, 1, 125. V, 4, 96. Ado II, 1, 838. LLL III, 43. Merch. I, 1, 3. I, 2, 9 (cf. come).

The idea of 'way, direction' still discernible in cases, where it seems to denote simple locality: by land, Tp. V, 220. Ant. II, 6, 90. by water, II, 6, 89. by sea and land, Shr. V, 2, 149. by flood and field, Oth. I, 3, 135. by east, LLL I, 1, 248. by east, west, north and south, V, 2, 566. by the west, Mids. II, 1, 158. by south and east, H4A III, 1, 75. The idea of way, direction, acting together with that of instrumentality: she takes him by the hand, Ven. 361. 1124. hanging by his neck, 593. catch her by the neck, 872. cf. Lucr. 253. Tp. II, 2, 108. Wiv. I, 1, 308. IV, 6, 44. V, 5, 155. Meas. I, 3, 29. III, 1, 109. IV, 1, 55. V, 348. Ado V, 1, 90. 318. LLL IV, 1, 114. As I, 2, 224. II, 7, 199. IV, 3, 163. Tw. I, 3, 70. H6C V, 4, 69. Oth. III, 3, 423. By the hand = at hand, near: till we had his assistance by the hand, H4B I, 3, 21.

Local presence leading over to the idea of time: by moonshine, Tp. V, 37. by moonlight, Mids. I, 1, 30. run from her by her own light, Err. III, 2, 99. by his light did all the chivalry of England move, H4B II, 3, 19. I may read by them (the exhalations) Caes. II, 1, 45. by that music let us all embrace, H4A V, 2, 99. Hence: by day, Gentl. III, 1, 109. H6B I, 1, 26. by night, Gentl. III, 1, 110. III, 2, 83. H6B I, 1, 26. by day and night, Tp. I, 2, 336. by night and day, Err. IV, 2, 60 (see day and night). And in general = at a certain point of time, but always meaning: when it has come, or will come to that time: by the next moon prepare to die, Mids. I, 1, 83. to con them by to-morrow night, I, 2, 103. by day's approach look to be visited, III, 2, 430. meet me all by break of day, V, 429. cf. Ado V, 1, 261. V, 4, 13. Merch. II, 6, 59. Shr. IV, 3, 190. All's I, 3, 255. III, 6, 82. John II, 219. R2 I, 3, 194. H4A II, 4, 564. Lr. V, 3, 114. Oth. IV, 1, 225. by seven o'clock, Gentl. III, 1, 226. Meas. II, 1, 34. IV, 2, 67. 124. Merch. II, 2, 122. As IV, 1, 184. H4A I, 2, 139. H5 III, 7, 168. Troil. III, 3, 296. by the second hour, R3 V, 3, 31. Troil. II, 1, 134. Caes. II, 1, 218. By this = by this time: by this the love-sick queen began to sweat, Ven. 175 (= when it had come to this). 697. 877. 973. 1165. Lucr. 1079. 1268. 1772. Wiv. IV, 1, 3. V, 5, 185. Err. III, 1, 115. V, 118. Ado I, 1, 3. III, 2, 79. Shr. IV, 1, 120. All's V, 3, 134. H6C IV, 2, V, 1, 3. V, 5, 90. Troil. V, 2, 183. Tit. III, 1, 109. IV, 3, 66. Caes. I, 3, 125. Lr. IV, 6, 45.

As it is used, like with, to denote nearness or company, so also to indicate the person subject to an activity: I would thou hadst done so by Claudio, Meas. V, 478 (= with Claudio, or rather in the case of Claudio). though my mocks come home by me, I will now be merry, LLL V, 2, 637. I would they would forget me, like the virtues which our divines lose by 'em, Cor. II, 3, 64. so disguise shall, by the disguised, pay with falsehood false exacting, Meas. III, 2, 294; i. e. disguise shall be allowed to pay with falsehood the demands of one who is himself a disguised hypocrite. (cf. the modern use of to deal; see also to set in such phrases as to set little by sth., Gentl. I, 2, 82). — Thus, after the verbs of speaking and thinking, by sometimes comes to be = of: virtuous in any thing that I do know by her, Ado V, 1, 312 (originally = with her, in her, about her). that 'macy may be meant by the fool multitude, Merch. II, 9, 26. how say you by the French lord? I, 2, 58. I would not have him know so much by me, LLL IV, 3, 150. thus I conceive by him, Shr. V, 2, 22 (a quibble). by him and by this woman here what know you? All's V, 3, 237. speake the truth by her, Gentl. II, 4, 151. but by bad courses may be understood that their events can never fall out good, R2 II, 1, 213. how think you by that? H6B II, 1, 16. how say you by this change? Oth. I, 3, 17. to speak ... not by your own instruction, nor by the matter which your heart prompts you, Cor. III, 2, 54.

Nearly related to the idea of a way is that of a means or instrument: by your art, Tp. I, 2, 1. by foul play, 62. by telling of it, 100. by providence divine, 159. 180. 204. 275. 497. II, 2, 38. III, 2, 49. V, 40 etc. etc. they live by your bare words, Gentl. II, 4, 46. I live by food, AsII, 7, 14. Frequently after to appear, to know, to mean, and similar words: I can (remember); by what? by any other house or person? Tp. I, 2, 42. I know it by thy trembling, II, 2, 83. I know her by her gait, IV, 102. it appears by their bare liveries, Gentl. II, 4, 45. IV, 2, 89. what mean you by that saying? V, 4, 167. Wiv. III, 1, 73. III, 5, 12. V, 2, 7. 16. V, 3, 208. I thought by your readiness in the office ..., Meas. II, 1, 275. V, 330. 499. gather the sequel by that went before, Err. I, 1, 96 (cf. H6A II, 3, 69). I guess it stood in her chin, by the salt rheum, III, 2, 131. IV, 4, 96. LLL II, 229. to choose love by another's eyes, Mids. I, 1, 140. the mazed world, by their increase, now knows not which is which, II, 1, 114. 264. III, 2, 236. 349. V, 257. As IV, 3, 8. H6A III, 1, 124. you seem to understand me, by each at once her chappy fingers laying upon her skinny lips, Mcb. I, 3, 44. — After the verbs of measuring: that (thy mind) they measure by thy deeds; Sonn. 69, 10. He would have weighed thy brother by himself, Meas. V, 111. I measure him by my own spirit, Ado II, 3, 149. we measure them by weary steps, LLL V, 2, 194. — Peculiar expressions: she is dead, and by strange manner, Caes. IV, 3, 189. his sollicitings, as they fell out by time, by means and place, Hml. II, 2, 127. to part by the teeth the unowed interest of proud-swelling state, John IV, 3, 146. either send the chain or send me by some token, Err. IV, 1, 56 (i. e. so that I may prove the legitimacy of my commission by a token). say, by this token, I desire his company, Meas. IV, 3, 144. go, by this token, R3 IV, 2, 80. — By heart, by leave, patience, pardon, see the resp. words.

To the same source must be traced its use in denoting the sum of difference between things: too much by one, Gentl. V, 4, 52. ere the ships could meet by twice five leagues, Err. I, 1, 101. one (child) too much by thee, Ado IV, 1, 131. too long by half a mile, LLL V, 2, 54. 760. Mids. V, 63. Tw. V, 139. Wint. IV, 4, 724. V, 3, 29. H4A III, 2, 73. H8 I, 2, 208. Cor. III, 1, 103. Hml. II, 2, 466. Similarly: by many a year before, H8 II, 4, 49. not to come near our person by ten mile, H4B V, 5, 69. — By how much ... by so much = the more, the more: by how much defence is better than no skill, by so much is a horn more precious than to want, As III, 3, 62. by how much unexpected, by so much we must awake endeavour, John II, 80. and so much less of shame in me remains, by how much of me their reproach contains, Compl. 189. you are the better at proverbs, by how much a fool's bolt is soon shot, H5 III, 7, 131. by how much she stri- ves to do him good, she shall undo her credit with the Moor, Oth. II, 3, 364. by so much is the wonder in extremes, H6C III, 2, 115 (= the more).

Equally, in expressing the measure, by which an action is regulated, especially the stages of a successive action: make him by inch-meal a disease, Tp. II, 2, 3. which you shall find by every syllable a faithful verity, Meas. IV, 3, 131. sell by gross, LLL V, 2, 319. loves her by the foot; he may not by the yard, 674. 'tis purchased by the weight, Merch. III, 2, 89. utters it by great swarths, Tw. II, 3, 162. buy maidenheads by the hundreds, H4A II, 4, 398. by the dozens, H8 V, 4, 33. by ones, by twos, and by threes, Cor. II, 3, 47. he's to make his requests by particulars, 48. will bear the knave by the volume, III, 3, 33. they'll give him death by inches, V, 4, 42. peruse him by items, Cymb. I, 4, 7. I will believe you by the syllable, Per. V, 1, 169. Similarly: compound with him by the year, Meas. IV, 2, 25. two thousand ducats by the year, Shr. II, 371. a thousand pounds by the year, H5 I, 1, 19. O that I knew he were but in by the week, LLL V, 2, 61. what expense by the hour seems to flow from him, H8 III, 2, 108. how Diomed, a whole week by days, did haunt you, Troil. IV, 1, 9. for quick accumulation of renown, which he achieved by the minute, Ant. III, 1, 20. i. e. every minute; cf. should by the minute feed on life and lingering by inches waste you, Cymb. V, 5, 51. Strangely, but intelligibly: this was but as a fly by an eagle, Ant. II, 2, 186. i. e. as a fly for every one to feed on in a company of eagles.

Serving also to denote the instrumentality of persons: and do pronounce by me, Tp. III, 3, 76. send him by your two men to Datchet-mead, Wiv. III, 3, 141. she sent for you by Dromio home to dinner, Err. II, 2, 156. ourselves we do remember by you, V, 292 (by seeing you bound). I see by you I am a sweet-faced youth, 418. or else by him my love deny, As IV, 3, 62. send for your daughter by your servant here, Shr. IV, 4, 58. I sent to her by this same coxcomb tokens and letters, All's III, 6, 122. you'll nothing to my lord by me? Tw. III, 1, 148. Bohemia greets you by me, Wint. V, 1, 181. the king by me requests your presence, John IV, 3, 22. send him word by me, V, 3, 7. the countess by me entreats, H6A II, 2, 40. the commons send you word by me, H6B III, 2, 243. by her he had two children, IV, 2, 147. send to her by the man that slew her brothers a pair of bleeding hearts, R3 IV, 4, 271. H8 IV, 2, 117. Tit. I, 181. IV, 2, 10. and by him do my duties to the senate, Oth. III, 2, 2. forborne the getting of a lawful race, and by a gem of women, Ant. III, 13, 108. she soon shall know of us, by some of ours, V, 1, 57. the Roman emperor's letters, sent by a consul to me, Cymb. IV, 2, 385. Similarly: but we do learn by those, Meas. I, 4, 53 (= we are informed). this you might have heard of here by me or by some other, Cymb. II, 4, 77. had his titles by Tenanius whom he served with glory, I, 1, 31. of this island's mine by Sycorax my mother, Tp. I, 2, 331. by her I claim the kingdom, H6B II, 2, 47. by my mother I derived am from Lionel Duke of Clarence, H6A II, 5, 74. you are damned both by father and mother, Merch. III, 5, 18. so (virtuous uncles) hath this both by the father and mother, R3 II, 3, 32. better it were they all came by the father, or by the father there were none at all, 23. cf. by the mother's side, John I, 163. Ant. II, 2, 120 (see side).

The idea of instrumentality prevails also in the phrase 'by the name of': call us by our names, Err. II, 2, 168. IV, 3, 3. I have wooed Margaret by the name of Hero, Ado III, 3, 155. by that name as oft as Lancaster doth speak of you, his cheek looks pale, H4A III, 1, 8. crowned by the name of Henry the Fourth, H6B II, 2, 23. that which we call a rose by any other name would smell as sweet, Rom. II, 2, 44. this diamond he greets your wife withal by the name of most kind hostess, Mch. II, 1, 16. Hence the following expression: if thou takest up the princess by that forced baseness which he has put upon't, Wint. II, 3, 78 (i. e. as if she were a bastard, which name he falsely gives her).

It is the same after the verbs to conjure and to swear; and in adjunctions without a verb preceding: she conjures him by high almighty Jove, Lucr. 568. swear by this bottle, Tp. II, 2, 125. I charge you by the law, Merch. IV, 1, 138. to break an oath by him, R3 IV, 4, 381. by all above, Sonn. 110, 6. Tp. II, 2, 127. 148. III, 1, 53. III, 2, 17. 56. III, 3, 1. IV, 226. Gentl. I, 2, 41. II, 5. I. III, 1, 166. IV, 1, 36. IV, 2, 100. V, 4, 139. Wiv. I, 1, 88. 156. 161. 168. 173. II, 1, 14 (by me) etc. etc.

The idea of instrumentality passing into that of causality: the remembrance of my former love is by a newer object quite forgotten, Gentl. II, 4, 195. by his master's command, IV, 2, 79. as school-maids change their names by vain, though apt affection, Meas. I, 4, 48. I do it ... from Lord Angelo by special charge, I, 2, 123. he would not, but by gift of my chaste body, release my brother, V, 97. might have ta'en revenge, by so receiving a dishonoured life, IV, 4, 34. howsoever it seems not in him, by some large jests he will make, Ado II, 3, 205. challenge me by these deserts, LLL V, 2, 815. feared by their breed and famous by their birth, R2 II, 1, 52. boiling choler ... by sight of these our enemies, H6A V, 4, 122. whereby his suit was granted, H8 I, 1, 186. and by those (ways of honour) claim their greatness, not by blood, V, 5, 39. all good seeming, by thy revolt, shall be thought put on for villany, Cymb. III, 4, 57.

And hence = according to: men will kiss even by their own direction, Ven. 216. that posterity which by the rights of time thou needs must have, 759. by consent, Tp. II, 1, 203. of a better nature than he appears by speech, I, 2, 497. and by your own report a linguist, Gentl. IV, 1, 56. which served me as fit by all men's judgments, IV, 4, 167. goes to them by his note, Wiv. IV, 2, 64. I durst have denied that ... by what rule? Err. II, 2, 69. there is no more sailing by the star, Ado III, 4, 58. that she were a maid by these exterior shows, IV, 1, 41. call forth your actors by the scroll, Mids. I, 2, 16. choose by show, Merch. II, 9, 26. what should his sufferance be by Christian example, III, 1, 73. an hour by his dial, As II, 7, 33. we quarrel in print, by the book, V, 4, 94 (Rom. I, 5, 112). the property by what it is should go, not by the title, All's II, 3, 137. that the great figure of a council frames by self-unable motion, III, 1, 13. an it be not four by the day, H4A II, 1, 1. fought a long hour by Shrewsbury clock, V, 4, 151. I stay too long by thee, H4B IV, 5, 94 (i. e. in thy opinion). Talbot means no goodness by his looks, H6A III, 2, 72. censure me by what you were, V, 5, 97. so that, by this, you would not have him die, H6B III, 1, 243. I will go by thy direction, R3 II, 2, 153. by the book he should have braved the east an hour ago, V, 3, 278. I'll go along by your prescription, H8 I, 1, 151. to speak ... not by your own instruction, Cor. III, 2, 53. a catalogue of all the voices set down by the poll, III, 3, 10. things of like value differing in the owners are prized by their masters, Tim. I, 1, 171 (according to the worth of their masters). a recompense more fruitful than their offence can weigh down by the dram, V, 1, 154. by the rule of that philosophy by which I did blame Cato, Caes. V, 1, 101. by the clock 'tis day, Mch. II, 4, 6. by the verities on these made good, may they not be my oracles as well? III, 1, 8. I will make questions and by them answer, Oth. III, 4, 17. that ebb and flow by the moon, Lr. V, 3, 19. those that make their looks by his, Ant. I, 5, 66. by him this creature is no such thing, III, 3, 43 (according to his account). by all likelihood, Cymb. I, 4, 54. having proceeded but by both your wills, II, 4, 56. there's no going but by their consent, Per. IV, 6, 208.

Lastly, nine times out of ten, denoting the agent of something done: cheated of our lives by drunkards, Tp. I, 1, 59. I, 2, 241. 270. 319 etc. etc.

By, adv., 1) near; present: in a cool well by, Sonn. 154, 9. I stole into a neighbour thicket by, LLL V, 2, 94. go with me into the chantry by, Tw. The bells are said to be clammed, when, after a course of rounds or changes, they are all pulled off at once, and give a general crash or clam, by which the peal is concluded.' Dyce: 'Mr. Hunter observes that the same phrase occurs in Taylor the Waterpoet's Sir Gregory Nonsense: Cease friendly cutting throats, c. the promulgation of your tongues.' And Mr. Arrowsmith explains clamour to mean curb; restrain, considering it as equivalent to chaumbre or chammer (Fr. chommer), and cites the following passages from Udall's translation of the Apophthegms of Erasmus: 'For Critias menaced and threatened him, that unless he chaumbr'd his tongue in season etc. and: from no sort of men in the world did he refrain or chaumbre the taunting of his tongue.' — It ought, after all, to be taken into account that in our passage it is the Clown that is speaking. If not a misprint, as Gifford supposed, it may be a misapplication of the word for 'charm.'
